Zane Grey Film at Torrance

Owen Moore and Constance Bennett in Zane Grey's "Code of the West" Paramount Pictures

Romance with a punch—that, in a phrase, aptly describes "Code of the West," Zane Grey's new thriller, which is coming to the Torrance Theatre Sunday and Monday. It is not a period production, but a vital, absorbing story of today—an up-to-date, twelve-cylinder 1925 romance of a frivolous flapper and a rugged cowboy, in which the viewpoint of the east, as typified by its jazz palaces, fast sets and petting parties, is contrasted with that of the west, with its wholesomeness, simplicity and straightforward attitude toward life and love. Pictured against marvelous natural backgrounds—the colorful Tonto Basin, Arizona—and abounding in breath-taking thrills, two of which include a tremendous automobile-horse race and a spectacular forest fire, "Code of the West" stands head and shoulders above the average so-called western because of its unusual theme and original situations. One of the outstanding features of this photoplay is its strong vein of comedy. There are many humorous episodes and laughable situations which have been logically introduced to offset and emphasize the more dramatic moments. And it is this shrewd mixture of romance, action, drama and comedy that makes "Code of the West" such marvelous entertainment.

Big Films Coming to Lomita

Scene From "Fear Bound"

Friday and Saturday "Night Life of New York" is scheduled at the Lomita Theatre, with Rod La Rocque, Dorothy Gish, George Mackathorne and Ernest Torrence. Sunday's program features "Fear Bound," a story of a youth's fight to conquer natural cowardice, with Marjorie Daw and Will Nigh play the leads. Monday, together with Country Store, bigger and better, with the adult contest, gifts and laughs, will be shown Clive Brook in "Love's Bargain," which deals with the sacrifice of a girl marrying in name only, and wherein the man proves that his promises are kept, even though at a sacrifice. Tuesday and Wednesday the feature is Evelyn Brent in "Alias Mary Flynn," which is a smashing story of a young girl's regeneration, fighting through the underworld. Thursday Adolphe Menjou, Greta Nissen and Robert Agnew will be shown in a William De Mille production, "Lost—A Wife," a comedy-drama with lots of laughs. This is in addition to our preview vaudeville, which consists of six to ten acts of merit.

Sparkling Play at Oriental Theatre

Sparkling with pep and joy, fairly bubbling over with laughter, "So This is Arizona," is bringing delight to the hearts of the audiences of the Oriental Theatre at North Long Beach. The scene of the story is laid in Arizona, as its name indicates, the land of the Golden West. Here the heroine finds herself in a country where everything is strange to her. At the death of her uncle she finds herself the owner of a large cattle ranch and does not understand the various duties of the cowboys. She is confronted with the problem of stopping the branding of cattle which seems to her extreme cruelty. Her unique method of meeting the situation is delightfully humorous and will keep the spectators in a constant uproar of laughter. The three acts are teeming with ludicrous situations and furnish a steady flow of comedy which is unusually pleasing. Mignon Callish is slated for the role of the heroine while Leon Roget will play opposite her.
